

What is EIA?

Equine infectious anemia (EIA), also known as “swamp fever,” is a viral disease of horses and other equids (i.e. donkeys, mules, and zebras) that causes recurrent episodes of fever, lethargy and destruction of red blood cells (anemia) and platelets (thrombocytopenia)... (more)

With neither cure nor vaccine in existence, veterinarians and researchers must supervise the equine infectious anemia virus closely to avoid widespread disease.

Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA)

-

Premises infected with EIA in Canada in 2014

-

Federally Reportable Diseases for Terrestrial Animals in Canada - 2014

-

Equine Infectious Anemia \(swamp fever\) page

-

What to expect if your animals are infected

-

Animal Health Compensation - What to expect when an animal is ordered destroyed

Other Resources

- Animal Health - Equine Infectious Anemia, Understanding The Threat • Alberta Veterinary Medical Association
- Equine Infectious Anemia and the Coggins Test
- Fight Against Equine Infectious Disease Helped by Equine Foundation of Canada • Equine Guelph